Among the causes of failure may be mentioned unfavourable weather, which is one of the most important. The soil may be in proper condition when the seed is planted, but the weather which follows may be too wet, which will cause the seed to rot; or it may be too hot and dry, which destroys the germ before it

Shanghai has been even more unfortunate than Hongkong in the matter of weather, has the rain delayed the cricket match gatta. As our contemporary, the N_{i} - C_{i} Daily News puts it, it was bad enough of the weather to keep the Hongkong visitors so long away from the Cricket Ground, to use which they had come enecially some eight hundred tempesthous miles; but it was still worse not to allow at least three or four rainless hours in which they might have seen the Regatta in comfort. However, the Regatta came off and the Hongkongites contributed to the sports. Among the events of the first day was the

THE TELEGRAPH CONVENTION. THE PROTESTS OF THE CHAMBERS NOT TOO LATE

It is gratifying to know, mys the N.-U Daily News, that, as the following telegram from Colonel Denby shows, the protest of the Hongkong and Shanghai Chambers of Commerce was not altogether too late :-Peking, 17th Oct., 1889, 11.30 a.m. Chamber of Commerce, Shanghai. I have circulated your telegram for the information of my colleagues. Understand telegraph convention not yet ratified. As Minister of await protest. Denby.'

The article we print b low from a wellterior, in fact they have only four stations, at informed source gives full particulars of the strenuous attempt that is being made to | The foreign companies charge $1 per word bind the foreign communities in the 82 ence: and the unexpected return from Hongkong of the Manager for China of the Eastern Extension Telegraph Company is no doubt connected with the fortunate delay in the ratification of the Convention. This delay, we are informed, arose through a change at the last moment in the terms as to the time of building the Chinese line to Kiachta, and this gave the Tsungli Yamen a door to escape through. The change was that the Kiachta line should be built within five years instead of after five years. The whole use of the Kiachta line, however, to all except Russian aubjects, depends on the Convention. If that is ratified, and the rate of $2 a word maintained, but few messages will be sent by Kiachta: but if China preserves her independence, builds the line. and joins the International Convention, we shall have telegraphic rates down to $1 a

There is one stipulation in the new Convention which is perhaps hardly understood generally, and which ought to except M. Coumany, to oppose it as a distinct breach of the most-favoured-nation clause in their treaties.
